2. The Chairman reminded Members to register their interests in accordance with the stipulation of Order 22 of the Kowloon City District Council Standing Orders (the Standing Orders) and stated that if the matters to be discussed had any connection or potential conflict of interests with their personal interests such as property rights, profession or investment, they should make a declaration proactively at the meeting so that he could make a decision in accordance with the Standing Orders.

3. The Chairman stated that in accordance with Order 32 of the Standing Orders, the quorum of the District Council meeting was not less than half the District Council Members holding the office for the time being. If the quorum was not present at the commencement of the meeting or in the course of the meeting, he would direct the Secretary to summon the absentees. Item 2
Work Strategies 2026/27 for Community Publicity and Education of the Independent Commission Against Corruption Regional Office (Kowloon West)
(KCDC Paper No. 22/2026)

6. Ms LY Uyen-g, Debbie, Regional Officer / Kowloon and Sai Kung of the Independent Commission Against Corruption (ICAC), introduced KCDC Paper No. 22/2026 with presentation slides, with the main points as follows:

(i) the service areas of the ICAC Regional Office (Kowloon West) (the Office) included three districts, namely Kowloon City, Yau Tsim Mong and Sham Shui Po. Apart from facilitating the public in reporting corruption and making enquiries, officers were also deployed to provide integrity training for different sectors in the community and to organise local publicity activities to disseminate probity messages;

(ii) the work directions of the Office for 2026/27 included: (a) providing targeted corruption prevention education focusing on potential corruption in different sectors; and (b) utilising district networks and diverse platforms to strengthen publicity and collect views.

Meanwhile, the work strategies included: (a) focusing on building management; (b) nurturing a next generation committed to integrity; (c) providing targeted corruption prevention education; (d) grasping public sentiments on anti-corruption work; (e) experiencing anti-corruption work first-hand; and (f) keeping abreast of digital trends to enhance publicity effectiveness;

(iii) in terms of building management, the Office had been adopting a three-pronged approach comprising professional enforcement, policy prevention and community education, working in collaboration with various stakeholders to combat corruption and bid-rigging. The work included: (a) proactively reaching out to newly incorporated owners' corporations (OCs) and owners of buildings requiring maintenance to introduce anti-corruption laws and corruption prevention services of the ICAC; and (b) providing building-related corruption prevention information via an enquiry hotline and a thematic website. In 2025, the hotline of the Office received over 400 enquiries and the thematic website recorded over 250 000 views;

(iv) in view of the heightened public concern over building management and maintenance following the fire at Wang Fuk Court, the ICAC would strengthen publicity efforts in 2026/27. Specific measures included: (a) organising roving talks across the 18 districts; (b) inviting district governance organisations and owners' associations to participate in focus exchange groups; (c) contacting housing estates and buildings undergoing major maintenance works to remind them to take proper preventive measures against corruption; and (d) launching a WhatsApp channel to share information on building management;

(v) the ICAC would launch a new original production named "ICAC Kids Theatre" with performances arranged across various districts, and would publish a new picture storybook on moral education to help schoolchildren foster proper values. In addition, the Office would continue to organise student participation programmes for primary schools, secondary schools and tertiary institutions to widely spread the messages of integrity and probity;

(vi) with a view to reminding employees to stay vigilant, the Office would continue to organise corruption prevention talks for various public and private organisations, and arrange anti-corruption talks and visits to the ICAC, as well as online publicity for imported workers and incoming talents. Meanwhile, the Office would organise a series of education and publicity activities on "Clean Elections", so as to ensure that the Election Committee Subsector By-elections and various Rural Representative Elections to be held in 2026 and 2027 would be clean and fair;

(vii) in terms of community connection, the Office would invite local groups and leaders to attend in-depth exchange activities, so as to incorporate the views collected into work plans and facilitate more effective implementation of anti-corruption work. In addition, the ICAC would continue to adopt "Inside the ICAC" as the main theme, attracting local, Mainland and overseas visitors through the organic integration of the ICAC Exhibition Hall and "Café 1974". The Office would also launch the "Operation 303" investigator experience activity, which would enable participants to gain first-hand experience of enforcement work; and

(viii) the Office would continue to produce a mini-drama series on a cost-effective basis to depict the work and challenges of various roles within the ICAC. In addition, the ICAC would deepen the application of artificial intelligence (AI) to transform the messages on probity and the requirements of anti-corruption laws into short videos and animations that were vivid and easy to understand.

7. Mr WONG Chi acknowledged the promotional work of the ICAC. He suggested that the ICAC consider training university students to serve as guides in the ICAC Exhibition Hall. This initiative could not only deepen the corruption prevention awareness of the university students and help the ICAC conduct promotional education at more levels, but also share the workload of the ICAC's Community Relations Department.

8. Mr LAM Tak-shing's views were consolidated as follows:

(i) supported and acknowledged the local publicity, education and community liaison work of the ICAC, and considered that the ICAC's

WhatsApp channel scheme could facilitate public access to more anti-corruption information. Various activities of the ICAC, including the "Operation 303" investigator experience activity, were well received by the public. It was suggested that the participant quota for the activity be increased so as to enable more members of the public to gain a deeper understanding of corruption prevention; and

(ii) there were several large-scale maintenance works in Kowloon City District. He would like the ICAC to share more corruption prevention information related to such works with the public during the maintenance process, and provide a one-stop hotline for the public to make enquiries and reflect their views regarding suspected corruption matters.

9. Mr CHO Wui-hung's views were consolidated as follows:

(i) acknowledged the corruption prevention publicity and enforcement work of the ICAC, and supported its current work strategy of focusing on building management;

(ii) suggested that the ICAC provide ongoing corruption prevention education to OCs and owners more proactively, and pay attention to the probity of the maintenance works, so as to ensure that the building management work complies with the laws and regulations, and to remind OCs to maintain high transparency in the decision-making process in order to reduce misunderstanding; and

(iii) would like the ICAC to launch more measures to further enhance its promotional work, such as setting up an additional ICAC Café in Kowloon West, and adding career role-playing games, so as to enable children to deepen their corruption prevention awareness through play.

10. Dr Rizwan ULLAH's views were consolidated as follows:

(i) there were many ethnic minorities in Kowloon City District, who might inadvertently breach the law due to cultural differences. It was suggested that the ICAC organise specific activities for ethnic minorities to impart corruption prevention knowledge; and

(ii) suggested that the school activities of the ICAC be approached from a Chinese cultural perspective, in order to align with the Chinese cultural concepts in the latest Values Education Curriculum Framework formulated by the Education Bureau (EDB).

11. Ms Debbie LY of the ICAC replied with the main points as follows:

(i) the ICAC had currently arranged for university student ambassadors to assist with guided tour work at the ICAC Exhibition Hall, so as to enhance young people's understanding of anti-corruption work;

(ii) the ICAC would share the hyperlink with Members for joining the ICAC's WhatsApp channel related to building management, and invite Members to forward the hyperlink or the messages of the channel to persons involved in building management, so that more members of the public in need could receive the corruption prevention information regarding building management;

(iii) the ICAC would proactively contact the persons responsible for buildings undergoing large-scale maintenance works, explain common building-related corruption problems to them, and help them enhance corruption prevention measures at an early stage;

(iv) regarding enhancing promotional and education measures on corruption prevention, such as distributing coffee in the district, the ICAC had noted Members' views and would try various approaches to enable the public to further understand the ICAC and to support anti-corruption work;

(v) regarding the support for ethnic minorities, the ICAC would contact the related persons via schools and non-governmental organisations, and explain the requirements of anti-corruption laws and the culture of probity; and

(vi) the ICAC had been in close collaboration with the EDB on integrity education, and had incorporated Chinese cultural elements into the moral education resources regarding anti-corruption launched in the new school year. This would enable kindergarten and primary school students to enhance their national identity while learning about positive values.

12. There being no further views or enquiries from Members, the Chairman declared the item closed.

Item 3
Promotion of "Ticket Stub Economy" and Collaboration with In-depth Travel in Kowloon City to Boost District Consumption
(KCDC Paper No. 23/2026)

13. Dr Rizwan ULLAH introduced KCDC Paper No. 23/2026, the contents of which were summarised as follows:

(i) the mega events held at the Kai Tak Sports Park (KTSP) had attracted a large number of local and overseas spectators, driving an average 15 per cent increase in business for merchants in the adjacent area of Kowloon City District. Some merchants had voluntarily launched the "discount with ticket stub" offers, reflecting that the market had a natural demand for and willingness to participate in the "event ticket stub economy". It was therefore suggested that the related departments grasp the advantages of mega events at the KTSP, and simultaneously analyse visitors' consumption patterns, length of stay, and the proportion of overnight visitors during the events, so as to formulate strategies for extending visitors' stay in Hong Kong, thereby linking event spectatorship closely with local consumption chains;

(ii) Kowloon City District possessed rich cultural heritage and community appeal, such as distinctive local Thai and Chaozhou cultures. It was suggested that "In-depth Travel in Kowloon City" be integrated with mega sports events, or that a "map of post-event late-night snack" be introduced, to encourage visitors to spend in Kowloon City District before and after the events, thereby boosting the local economy; and

(iii) some merchants suggested arranging shuttle buses travelling directly to Kowloon City District to facilitate Mainland tourists returning to the Mainland by Huanggang buses. It was also suggested that add-on options for merchants' shopping vouchers be provided on ticketing platforms to attract more visitors.

14. The Chairman invited Members to refer to the written replies furnished by the Transport Department (TD), the Kowloon City District Office (KCDO) and the Culture, Sports and Tourism Bureau, i.e. Documents No. 1, 2 and 3 tabled.

15. Mr NG Po-keung's views and enquiries were consolidated as follows:

(i) parking spaces in Kowloon City District were insufficient. Consumers from other districts might leave due to the lack of parking spaces. He enquired whether the TD could open up vacant sites etc. as temporary car parks to alleviate the parking pressure in the district;

(ii) the recent beautification measures implemented by the Urban Renewal Authority in the Lung Shing area, such as lanterns and murals, could effectively attract visitors. Following the example of Jade Street, it was suggested that additional distinctive large archways be erected in the Lung Shing area to highlight the theme of local specialities and enhance the atmosphere of the district;

(iii) many visitors passed through the connecting streets, footbridges and subways between the KTSP, the Lung Shing area and To Kwa Wan. It was suggested that murals featuring the themes of Kai Tak Airport, Chaozhou and Thai delicacies be added along these connecting routes, and that photo-taking spots be set up to boost the local tourism atmosphere;

(iv) the Kowloon City Songkran Festival, held annually in the Lung Shing old area, could attract a large number of people. It was expected that more district activities with local characteristics could be organised under other themes of intangible cultural heritage to drive the flow of people in the district;

(v) some old-established merchants in Kowloon City District were unfamiliar with electronic payments and foreign languages. It was suggested that relevant departments could help merchants set up and learn how to use electronic payments, as well as introduce multilingual menus, so as to resolve transaction difficulties and language barriers between merchants and visitors; and

(vi) suggested that the "In-depth Travel in Kowloon City" could connect more distinctive locations in Kowloon City with existing recommended travel routes, so as to attract more visitors to experience them.

16. Mr NG Fan-kam stated that many visitors enjoyed visiting night markets. However, Hong Kong currently lacked a night market economy. It was suggested that relevant departments should set up a night market, together with corresponding ancillary transport facilities, in Kowloon City District, so as to attract visitors to visit the night market and spend after events at the KTSP, thereby boosting the local economy.

17. Mr LIU Kin-wai, Rick, Chief Transport Officer / Kowloon 2 of the TD, replied with the main points as follows:

(i) the TD had been striving to identify suitable locations within the district to increase the supply of parking spaces. The Department welcomed views put forward by Members on converting locations within the district which met the conditions into car parks. The Department would also study, together with relevant departments including the Lands Department, the feasibility of providing temporary car parks at those locations; and

(ii) in addition, following the successive completion and commissioning of the shopping malls near the KTSP, the relevant projects had also provided parking spaces, which helped increase the overall supply of parking spaces in the district. The Department would continue to closely monitor the parking demand in the district, and keep searching for suitable locations for setting up temporary car parks, so as to meet the parking needs of the public and visitors.

18. Mr CHEUNG Yin-kiu, Assistant District Officer of the KCDO, replied with the main points as follows:

(i) the KCDO had collaborated with different local groups in recent years to organise activities such as the "Cultural Extravaganza of Chaoshan" and the Kowloon City Songkran Festival, attracting the public and tourists to experience the Chaoshan and Thai cultural characteristics of Kowloon City District;

(ii) the KCDO had provided various recommended travel routes under the "In-depth Travel in Kowloon City" project, including the Flavour of Chaozhou Route, the Taste of Chaozhou and Thailand Route, and the Flavour of Thailand Route, attracting the public and visitors to explore Kowloon City District; and

(iii) apart from the tourism information boards launched previously, the KCDO was currently planning to set up directional signages for tourists in Kowloon City District, guiding the public and visitors to visit various attractions in the district.

19. The Chairman concluded and stated that Members' views would be conveyed to the relevant departments in a timely manner.

(xi) the KCDO would collaborate with local groups to organise various activities for celebrating the joy of the return to the Motherland, including variety performances, sports competitions and festive light decorations, etc.

21. There being no views or enquiries from Members on the item, the Chairman declared the agenda item closed.

(KCDC Paper No. 25/2026)

22. The Secretary introduced KCDC Paper No. 25/2026, with the main points as follows:

(i) in accordance with section 4A of the District Councils Ordinance, a District Council was required to collect public views in the respective district on an item specified by the Chairman of the District Council, and to submit a summary of the views collected and the corresponding proposals to the Government;

(ii) in 2025, the KCDC collected public views on two items, namely ancillary transport facilities in Kowloon City District and enhancement in harbourfront facilities, which had been discussed in meetings. (iii) in view of the large number of old buildings and redevelopment projects in Kowloon City District, the public in the district were concerned about both environmental hygiene and building management and safety. The Chairman of the District Council suggested that the KCDC should collect public views on these two items in 2026.

23. The Chairman invited Members to take note of the two items and collect views from no less than 30 members of the public on each item.
